

ABUSE COMPENSATION CLAIMS

If you are a survivor, or parent or guardian of a survivor of abuse, you know the lifelong and far-reaching impact it can have.

Whilst nothing can change what has happened in the past, compensation can help you to take control of your life and get the justice you deserve. It can help you to move forward, seek any support you require and start to rebuild your life.

Confronting an abuser is often a big concern for survivors of abuse. Over 98% of our abuse compensation claims are settled out of court. This means that it is very unlikely you will have to face your abuser.

But, if your case does go to court, our abuse solicitors will give you clear advice so you know what to expect. We'll also put your well being first and make sure that you have all the support you need throughout your claim.

As experts in this area, we also work alongside many charities and the Head of Department, Jane Matthews, is a qualified ACAL Panel member.

We believe that justice for survivors should be accessible no matter how long ago it happened. That's why we fought for a landmark change in the law, which allows an abuse claim to be brought before a court regardless of when it took place.
